Introduction

What is the IPC-IG?

The International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth (IPC-IG) is a global forum for international dialogue on innovative development policies, and its work reflects its mission of promoting policy dialogue and facilitating learning between developing countries around social policies for inclusive growth.

Guided by a partnership agreement between the Government of Brazil and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), with the support of the Brazilian Cooperation Agency (ABC), linked to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the IPC-IG was founded in 2002 and began its activities in 2004. Since then, the Centre has been providing services and tools to strengthen the institutional capacities of countries to design, monitor and evaluate social policies. Alongside its partners, policymakers and experts, the IPC-IG develops solutions to strengthen both human and institutional capacities and resources.

The innovative approaches used by the IPC-IG are based on three pillars:

- Knowledge production: carrying out research and studies, such as policy analysis and evaluations;
- Knowledge-sharing: gathering knowledge and facilitating the exchange of innovative experiences and initiatives among countries; and
- Capacity-strengthening: providing and facilitating the collaborative construction of capacity-strengthening activities and flows of knowledge across countries.

The IPC-IG's 2020 Activity Report

The IPC-IG is pleased to present its 2020 Activity Report, presenting the Centre's projects, activities, achievements, and outcomes from 1 October 2019 to 31 December 2020.

By disseminating this Activity Report, the Centre seeks to account for its work and inform stakeholders, partners, donors, and society in general, providing transparent and accurate information on all projects and activities conducted in this period.

This year's report features an additional chapter presenting the IPC-IG's activities related to the COVID-19 crisis. The document includes three main chapters presenting the projects, activities and products developed around each of the Centre's pillars during the period: 15 knowledge production projects, six knowledge-sharing projects and eight capacity-strengthening projects.

Projects are presented in table format, including information about the partners, objectives, outcomes, and the responsible team, together with a snapshot of outputs and tangible results. The last chapter introduces the IPC-IG's staff.

Our sincere thanks go to the Communications, ICT, Programme, Publications and Operations teams, whose names do not always appear in the project tables. Their contribution is essential to the success of any of the Centre's initiatives, and there can be no doubt as to how much value they add to the quality of our projects and institutional activities. Their work and abilities guarantee the high quality and timely dissemination of outputs.

2020 Projects and thematic areas

In 2020, the Centre rearranged its thematic fields of activity to ensure that the work developed remains under the scope of the official agreement signed by the Government of Brazil and the UNDP.

During the period, the IPC-IG implemented 29 projects in the areas of social protection, poverty reduction policies, technological innovation, sustainable development, and inclusive growth in countries in various regions: Middle East and North Africa (MENA), sub-Saharan Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, and South Asia.

The IPC-IG's activities in response to COVID-19

Since the World Health Organization (WHO) declared the COVID-19 a pandemic on 11 March 2020, most countries have implemented social distancing and lockdowns measures to try and control the spread of the virus. The IPC-IG team has been working from home during this period.

As such, missions, events and other planned activities had to be cancelled, adapted or carried out through online platforms.

Faced with this scenario, the Centre and its partners adapted ongoing activities and projects and created new ones to generate and share knowledge in response to the socio-economic crisis resulting from the pandemic and social distancing measures, as well as to discuss the social protection responses implemented by developing countries worldwide. This chapter describes the projects and activities held in 2020 specifically in response to the pandemic. Projects that were planned but needed further adaptations will be presented in the following chapters.

Policy mapping on COVID-19 social protection responses in Asia and the Pacific, Latin America and the Caribbean, Middle East and North Africa, and sub-Saharan Africa

For this activity, 23 IPC-IG researchers, 14 United Nations Volunteers, colleagues from UNICEF Regional Offices in South Asia, Middle East and North Africa and Latin America and the Caribbean, and specialists from the Social Protection Approaches to COVID-19—Expert Advice Helpline (SPACE) produced an extensive mapping of the social protection responses to COVID-19 carried out in countries of the global South. The team mapped over 1,000 programmes, including adaptations of existing social protection programmes or top-ups. The mapping will be available as a dashboard <<https://socialprotection.org/covid19>> in May 2021.

Social protection responses to COVID-19 task force

Developed through a partnership between the IPC-IG, socialprotection.org, GIZ and DFAT, the task force produced an Online Community which attracted more than 25,000 visits from March to October 2020, when the project ended; a webinar series with 32 sessions, organised in partnership with 27 institutions and featuring 6,000 live views; and 23 issues of a special newsletter on social protection responses to COVID-19, which gathered news, blogs, laws, and official government information across many different types of content, and was sent to over 5,500 subscribers.

Global e-Conference “Turning the COVID-19 crisis into an opportunity: what's next for Social Protection?”

This online event marked socialprotection.org's fifth anniversary and was held on 5-8 October 2020. In addition to providing a space to evaluate, share experiences on and learn about social protection responses to COVID-19, the event was also a moment for reflection, allowing 200 panellists and over 2,000 registered attendees to discuss the future of social protection in a post-pandemic scenario. The conference had the support of many individuals and organisations.

Twitter threads on countries' social protection responses to COVID-19

The IPC-IG and partner organisations published a total of 27 threads* in the Centre's Twitter account, presenting an overview of selected countries' social protection responses to the COVID-19 crisis. Eight threads addressed Latin America and the Caribbean, five were aimed at the Middle East and North Africa, one discussed South Asia and four focused on Brazil's pandemic response. Six other countries were also addressed in this series: Costa Rica, Morocco, Tunisia, Sri Lanka and Jordan. The threads are available in four languages: English (18), Spanish (4), French (2) and Portuguese (1) and were visualised a total of 63,272 times (impressions), generating 2,705 interactions (engagements).

Support to UNDP's Social Protection Offer (reflecting the COVID-19 situation)

Under the framework of a new project with the UNDP Bureau for Policy and Programme Support (BPPS), the IPC-IG provided guidance and review on their “Social Protection Offer”, a strategy aiming at providing social protection support to UNDP Country Offices in the coming years. The UNDP BPPS has also asked the IPC-IG to develop an implementation plan for the Social Protection Offer in 2021.

* These figures refer solely to the first tweet of each of the 27 threads. Statistics collected in 31 December 2020.

Knowledge production

The Centre's knowledge production activities comprise outputs from both research projects and publications. Together with partner institutions, practitioners, and governments, the IPC-IG conducted 15 research projects aiming at designing, analysing and evaluating public policies. To consolidate the knowledge gathered during these activities, 109 publications were released in different formats and multiple languages.

The IPC-IG publications also serve to share both newly produced and previously existing knowledge with a global audience that includes policymakers, academia, practitioners, members of the media and civil society in general, and to improve the international debate in the cooperation arena. Below we present the projects undertaken between October 2019 and December 2020.

In 2017, the IPC-IG started a UN2UN agreement with the UNICEF Middle East and North Africa Regional Office (MENARO) to produce knowledge products in the field of social protection and provide technical assistance to UNICEF Country Offices in the region.

Continuing a series of knowledge products developed since then, a report on the role of social protection in young people's transition to the workplace in MENA was published in 2020.

Moreover, building on the support provided to UNICEF Sudan in 2019, which included a country mission to Khartoum, a detailed mapping of all social protection programmes in the country was published. Technical assistance was also provided to UNICEF Country Offices in Sudan and Tunisia in the form of peer reviews and policy and data analysis to enhance the child sensitivity of national social protection systems.

With the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, the IPC-IG started supporting UNICEF in the region by scoping and discussing Country Offices' demands for technical assistance for their activities related to social protection responses to the health crisis (to be provided in the next agreement between the IPC-IG and UNICEF MENARO). In addition, a detailed mapping of all social protection responses to the crisis in MENA was started and, in partnership with the Regional UN Issue-Based Coalition on Social Protection, the Centre supported the development of a technical note on the responses to COVID-19 in the region.

Due to a productive partnership and the growing demand on behalf of UNICEF MENARO and UNICEF Country Offices, in June 2020 the IPC-IG and UNICEF MENARO signed a new UN2UN agreement to continue providing technical assistance in the region for their work related to social protection, focusing especially on activities related to the COVID-19 crisis. The scope of the technical assistance depended on the demands of each Country Office, but included: mapping of social protection responses to the pandemic; support in conducting socio-economic impact assessments of the crisis; providing advice regarding policy development (such as the design of an emergency cash transfer), and reviewing strategic and programmatic documents. The IPC-IG team also started working on a series of practical guidance notes related to the design and implementation of social protection responses to COVID-19, which are expected to be finalised in 2021.

The contribution of funding to the promotion of the positive climate change agenda was discussed and considerations were provided regarding the transparency of national public funding of the Annual Plan for Climate Change (Plano Nacional de Mudança do Clima—PNMC), especially within the scope of the measurement, reporting and verification (MRV) system of the Climate Convention. The IPC-IG finalised five regional comparative studies with recommendations on how different stakeholders can contribute to the development of social protection. Additionally, the team worked on an impact evaluation that will be published in 2021. These studies inform two series of One Pagers, one summarising social protection responses to COVID-19 in each country, and the other summarising cross-cutting takeaways for each country from the regional studies, to be published in 2021. The latter was accompanied by a webinar series in 2020.

The project also includes three technical assistance components: 1) Technical assistance days, which were converted into notes and briefs for each of UNICEF's Country Offices in South Asia; 2) the facilitation of the policy dialogue to result in a new social protection policy for Afghanistan; 3) the elaboration of fiscal and reprogramming analysis to enhance the efficiency of existing programmes and identify funding possibilities for a new universal child benefit proposed by UNICEF in Sri Lanka.

Due to COVID-19, the technical deliverables for Afghanistan and Sri Lanka have advanced but important activities have been postponed as they require in-person missions.

In 2020, an Action Plan was developed, which considers the evolution of the public policy's main areas following the 2020 COVID-19 crisis and focuses on providing access to health care and social protection for children, unemployed people and retirees. In addition, a shock-responsive dimension was incorporated, following the development of the pandemic.

To better understand the broad array of social protection responses by different countries and their potential for medium-term impacts on the social protection systems of developing countries, the IPC-IG started to map and assess social protection measures at the national level in the global South. The initiative counted on the assistance of a team of researchers that had previously supported the "Social protection responses to COVID-19" task force and developed a common tracking matrix aiming to offer inputs for the systematic analysis of adaptations and innovations of social protection interventions.

The matrix information stands out from the other mappings due to its rich level of detail, and by adopting a shock-responsive social protection perspective, allowing researchers, practitioners, and policymakers in the social protection field to benefit from a deep repository of experiences and government practices from all over the world, providing inputs for evidence-based decision-making regarding mid- and long-term solutions. The IPC-IG, UNDP Brazil and GIZ then partnered to develop a user-friendly interface for the matrix, improving the reach of its results with a dashboard that was made public in May 2021.

The UNDP Bureau for Policy and Programme Support (BPPS) at UNDP Headquarters is providing social protection support to governments and UNDP Country Offices through their Global Policy network. The UNDP has included several social protection priorities in their Strategic Plan 2021-2024, and this particular project aims to operationalise some of these priorities at the country and regional levels. The IPC-IG is supporting the BPPS Inclusive Growth team's activities, drafting a "Next Practices" paper that looks at best practices regarding the inclusiveness of social protection measures adopted during the COVID-19 crisis. This paper will be finalised in 2021. The Centre has also peer-reviewed the UNDP Social Protection Offer and will be developing an accompanying Implementation Plan in 2021. Once the Plan is operationalised, the IPC-IG expects to develop a series of social protection projects under its framework between 2021-2024, under the leadership of UNDP BPPS and in collaboration with UNDP Regional and Country Offices.

It offers direct access to the most up-to-date and comprehensive content on social protection through a variety of features, including searchable databases of social protection sources, blogs, news, events, and programme profiles. Members can also join Online Communities dedicated to prominent social protection topics and engage with innovative learning tools, such as online courses, webinars and livestream events. By December 2020, socialprotection.org had garnered a community of 7,307 members; directed access to 7,182 publications; organised 178 webinars and 14 livestreams in cooperation with various partners; and hosted 58 Online Communities. These initiatives directly contribute to foster the exchange of best practices in the field among the social protection community. The Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade of the Government of Australia (DFAT) has been supporting the socialprotection.org platform since 2014. Under the scope of this project, the socialprotection.org platform has been supporting German Agency for International Cooperation (Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit—GIZ GmbH) projects related to social protection, particularly on topics such as universal social protection, adaptive social protection, gender-sensitive social protection, inclusive growth (economic inclusion), digital social protection and COVID-19 through the organisation of virtual events, the production and dissemination of relevant materials and the facilitation of collaborative work, playing an especially important role disseminating this knowledge worldwide. While the project initially focused on providing overall support to the Global Alliances activities in the context of the Universal Social Protection (USP) 2030 Initiative, its priorities were slightly shifted due to the COVID-19 pandemic. In this context, from March to October 2020, in collaboration with GIZ, DFAT and the IPC-IG, socialprotection.org hosted the multi-agency and collaborative initiative “Social protection responses to COVID-19” to inform and provide updates on the topic, focusing on showcasing how countries around the world are responding to the pandemic through social protection measures. The initiative organised content and fostered discussions via a dedicated Online Community, as well as 32 webinars that comprised the “Social Protection Responses to COVID-19” series. In addition, the task force also released 23 newsletter editions featuring key resources collected each week.

To mark the end of the task force and the fifth anniversary of the platform, the e-Conference “Turning the COVID-19 crisis into an opportunity: What’s next for social protection?” was organised, taking place from 5 to 8 October 2020. The socialprotection.org team is working to make the main outcomes of the e-Conference widely accessible. These efforts have helped to further consolidate the platform’s role as a virtual hub for sharing best practices and fostering universal social protection initiatives, contributing to the objective of this project. The GIZ, on behalf of the German Federal Ministry of Economic Development and Cooperation (BMZ) has been supporting the socialprotection.org platform since 2015. This is the fourth project supported by them.

Publications

The IPC-IG believes that the free exchange of knowledge inspires people to produce further research and contributes to a more inclusive future. Part of the Centre's mission is to deliver its evidence-based policy research on issues related to development through different publication formats. All new publications are made freely available online through the Centre's website every month, originally released in English. Translated versions are also produced in Arabic, Bahasa (Indonesia), Chinese, German, French, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, Turkish and Swedish.

The Centre made available a total of 109 publications in 2020, including one new issue and one translated issue of Policy in Focus, 73 One Pagers, 12 Working Papers, 17 Research Reports, five Policy Research Briefs and two Reports. It also produced 71 translations (30 in Portuguese, 19 in Arabic, 17 in French, four in Spanish and one in German). Since its founding in 2002, the number of publication downloads has reached more than 9.1 million across over 180 countries (as of December 2020).

The IPC-IG provides research-based policy recommendations through different publication formats:

Policy in Focus is the IPC-IG's flagship publication—a magazine that seeks to synthesise policy debates and discussions, and educate and increase awareness about specific development themes.

Policy Research Briefs present concise theoretical and practical analyses of concrete policy options in the broader development field.

Research Reports present the structured results of projects developed by the Centre, often involving the classification and taxonomy of social protection programmes in different regions of the world.

Policy in Focus, volume 18, Issue No. 1

"Leveraging food systems for poverty and malnutrition reduction"

Even though substantial progress has been achieved worldwide in reducing both poverty and malnutrition, much is yet to be done. There are signs that the progress made in both dimensions has stalled in recent years. This special issue of Policy in Focus is dedicated to answering a crucial question: How can a food systems approach be used to design and implement policies and investments that reach those most vulnerable to poverty, hunger, malnutrition and suboptimal diets?

Research Report No. 55

"Social protection legislative frameworks in South Asia from a children's rights perspective"

An important element of social protection systems are regulatory frameworks. The absence of a legal framework for social protection leaves individuals and communities in need exposed to arbitrary decision-making and political change. A strong statutory basis which recognises social protection as a right ensures accountable institutions and enables individuals to make legitimate claims and enforce their rights, thus creating legal awareness, which is central to the legal empowerment of the most vulnerable members of society. This Research Report assesses the state of children's right to social protection by analysing the legal frameworks supporting national social protection systems.

Policy Research Brief No. 71

"Evidence from global practices of active labour market policies for young people's transition to work"

Understanding the factors that limit transitions to decent work remains a central concern for policymakers, as changes in the world of work considerably affect the availability and distribution of quality jobs. Many of these global issues are mirrored in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA). This brief by the IPC-IG and UNICEF MENARO focuses on the role of social protection to promote transitions to work for young people in MENA, especially among vulnerable groups.

Communications and outreach activities

Among the IPC-IG's communications and outreach activities, we can highlight the management of the Centre's website and social media channels (Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn and YouTube) in both English and Portuguese; the production of news articles; the production of monthly bulletins in English, Portuguese and French (the latter was discontinued by the end of 2020); the elaboration of press releases; media relations; translations of knowledge material; production of multimedia content, including videos; and the organisation of policy-related and learning events, such as seminars and workshops. A global audience, which includes experts, policymakers, practitioners, and civil society, as well as partner organisations and UN agencies, has been connected through these knowledge-sharing activities.

Social media

The IPC-IG strives to maintain an open channel with its audience through a strong social media presence. The rationale behind our communications strategy is to account for the Centre's work while providing information and helping raise awareness about important global development challenges.

Capacity-strengthening

The IPC-IG's work aims to provide and facilitate the collaborative construction of capacity-strengthening activities and flows of knowledge among countries. Our efforts target policymakers and experts in institutions at both national and local levels.

From October 2019 to December 2020, the Centre undertook eight capacity-strengthening projects, which were tailored to meet the demands for enhanced institutional capacity in different areas.
